Photoshop Elements is the closest thing to a non-Photoshop alternative, and for those who can't afford Photoshop, can try to create a template image. This type of image is known as a "Prepared Photoshop" image. FPS is one of the most common standards for military service. It stands for First Person Shooter, and it was developed in the mid-1990s by id Software. A lot of the games that are based on the FPS standard (such as Doom) are available on many game systems, including the Xbox 360, Xbox One, and PlayStation 3. The Game Connection is a software company based in Seattle, Washington, that is involved in developing programs for the Xbox 360, PlayStation 3, and Windows PC. The Game Connection develops video games that can be purchased in retail stores or on the Internet; however, it focuses on its creation of video games with hidden objects. Much of its work has used code and coding that is similar to that found in the Phoenix Software's program named The World's Best Game. The World's Best Game was a boxed software game with a cover that had the words "Phoenix Software" in red printed on the cover. The back of the cover describes the role of The World's Best Game. It states that it is the "Most Popular Game" with "Most Game Reviews" and "Best Mechanics" while giving a brief description of the game's parts. The front cover of the box has an image that features a person with a box with the words "The World's Best Game" printed on the front of the box. Underneath the words, there are a series of arrows that point to the different parts of the game. The program was a pay-per-download video game with a range of software games included with it. The game was also the first game for the Mac to have its own company name, Phoenix Software. The World's Best Game sold well into the early 2000s, when the game company was bought by Sony. After the Sony purchase, the software game became the PlayFirst Suite. The Game Connection bought the rights to the PlayFirst Suite in 2007. Technical drawing is a graphical representation of objects, elements, or processes. It enables students to draw on a 2D plane with 3D shapes and shadows. BEDFORD, MA (WHDH) - A local historian and author is trying to solve a mystery from Bedford's past. Ellie Kirkman, a Bedford native, said her mother told her a story about a woman who was living in the U.S. in the 1880s when her husband was sent to China to work. When he died, the woman's family sent for her to come home. She arrived in November 1880. "She was able to go to the U.S. Consulate and find that she was not, in fact, being held as a prisoner, she was being rescued from slavery," Kirkman said. Kirkman, who's studying slavery in the United States, said her mom's research led to a man in Yichang, China, who said he was the older brother of the woman. Ellie Kirkman said she read that this man had married and that his wife had given birth to a daughter, but she was never told who the father was. Kirkman said she's written to the daughter and the man, but no one has responded. "She was more than emancipated, she was a full-fledged family member," she said. "They knew they had a family member coming to them in the U.S. They didn't know anything about the daughter." The statements in this section merely provide background information related to the present disclosure and may not constitute prior art. In a vast majority of applications for motor vehicles, it is necessary to dispose the vehicle in a low position on the ground in order to help lifting the vehicle. Thus, it is necessary to raise the vehicle with the aid of a jack. In addition, jacks are often used to move a vehicle from one location to another. Examples of this type of use include the removal of a vehicle from a highway and the movement of a vehicle into a garage. In particular, jacks are used to help transfer a vehicle from one level of a parking garage to a ground level. When a jack is used to lift a vehicle, one common practice is to rest the tire of the vehicle on a jack support. Some jack supports include a jack stand. A jack stand is a jack support configured to raise the jack stand at the same time that the jack is raised so that the jack and the jack stand are raised together. Sometime, a jack may have to be raised from a low position to a high position. When a jack is raised from a low position to a high position, the jack tends to tilt as the jack is raised. This is problematic as the jack is often at an angle when it is coupled to the jack stand. This is problematic as the jack stand often does not couple with the jack at an angle. This is problematic as the jack stand may interfere with the jack when the jack stand is coupled with the jack. Another type of jack stand is a mono-tier jack stand. The mono-tier jack stand comprises a jack stand that couples with the jack between a first and second tier. Another type of jack stand is a bi-tier jack stand. The bi-tier jack stand comprises a jack stand that couples with the jack between a first and second tier. Typically, the first tier of the jack stand comprises a first tier of the jack stand that couples with the jack. The second tier of the jack stand comprises a second tier of the jack stand that does not couple with the jack. Another type of jack stand is a double-tier jack stand. The double-tier jack stand comprises two tiers which are separated from each other. Typically, the double-tier jack stand comprises two tiers which are coupled to each other at a first joint. Typically, the two tiers of the double-tier jack stand comprise a first tier of the jack stand and a second tier of the jack stand
